My family lost our granddaughter, Ellie, to brain cancer before her third birthday on December 22, 2013. We have turned this tragedy into raising awareness for Childhood Cancer, especially fund-raising for St Jude Children's Research Hospital, where Ellie was treated for 7 months.

Each year, my grandson Noah, age 8, challenges a family friend, Lisa, to raise money for St Jude. This past year, they teamed up to raise over $20,000. This year they have set a goal to raise $23,791, ten dollars more than last year. You can visit Noah and Lisa's fund-raising page, Buggin' for a Cure: <https://www.facebook.com/groups/1446897905605424> or the website is www.tridelta.stjude.org/bugz

To help reach Noah's goal, we would like to hold a Kids Craft Show, where children create items to sell and all proceeds will go St Jude. Children will be accompanied by a parent and they will not have to handle any money.

Crafters:

Each shopper will be given an "Items Purchased Form" upon entering the Craft show. Each vendor will be responsible for writing down on this form how much a shopper spends at their booth. Shoppers will check out before leaving the show at a designated checkout table where all money will be collected and later donated to St. Jude Children's Research Hospital.

Attracting customers:

- Friends and neighbors are your best customers. Invite them!
- Ask parents to share the event on Facebook, Twitter, etc. You will receive an electronic flier for this purpose.

Bring:

- Bring what you need, like tape, scissors, and tablecloth. Assign a price to your items. Experiment with your display ahead of time. Signs, decoration and a smile help!
- Bring a snack with you in case you get hungry. No food will be available for sale. Please have drinks in a closed container to avoid spills.

Check-in at 7:30 am:

- We will assign you a table. Please do not switch places as I will be mapping out where each crafter should be so that like-items are not sold side-by-side.

Clean-up:

- Please take down your signs, etc. and clean up your area. Anything not cleaned up after the sale will be thrown out.

Thank you so much for your interest in this fundraiser for St. Jude's. If you have any questions please email Tina Renninger tinarenninger@gmail.com.
